Hanoi Old Quarter

Hanoi's lively Old Quarter comprises 36 streets packed with shops selling all kinds of goods, each street named for its primary good or service. It has gained its renown thanks to its numerous attractions, rich cuisine, vibrant nightlife, and unique handicrafts.

There are a great number of exciting activities to experience in Hanoi Old Quarter. Here are some of them:

Walk around Hoan Kiem Lake

Located in the city center, Hoan Kiem Lake is considered the heart of Hanoi. Not only attracting visitors with its airy landscape, but this is also a Hanoi tourist destination that shows the historical and spiritual tradition of the capital.

In the middle of the lake, there is an ancient Turtle Tower. Besides, you can see a small peninsula in which there are other famous relics such as Pen Tower, The Huc Bridge, Tran Ba Communal House, Ngoc Son Temple, etc. Also, visiting Hoan Kiem Lake, you can have a chance to enjoy Trang Tien ice cream - a famous specialty that has been popular for generations in Hanoi.

Visit St Joseph's Cathedral

St Joseph's Cathedral, or "The Big Church" familiarly called by the locals, is one of the first structures constructed by French colonists during their expansion in Indochina and still intact in Hanoi after two fierce wars. Today, it becomes a historical attraction in Hanoi which remains the image of the beauty of the old Hanoi and makes an impression on travelers by its ancient beauty inside the bustling capital. St Joseph's Cathedral with its European beauty becomes a wonderful place of taking photos in Hanoi. Nowadays, the church has been choosing by couples to take wedding photos and by students to take yearbook photos.

Stroll through Hang Ma Street

Hang Ma Street is known by tourists as the busiest and most brilliant of the 36 ancient streets in Hanoi. It is famous for traditional craft of making votive paper and decoration accessories for holidays such as Mid-Autumn Festival and Christmas. Coming here, you can immerse yourself in the hustle and bustle of trading activities, along with the vibrant sounds of drums and even trumpets. Hang Ma Street has long become an ideal place for shopping, playing and taking photos of Hanoi people every holiday.

Ta
Hien

Ta Hien Street is likened to a paradise for night owls and beer lovers. The beer of Ta Hien Street is incredibly well-known, so it is not an exaggeration to say that this is the best place to take in Hanoi's vibrant nightlife and sip a cool beer. If you come to Hanoi on sweltering days, grab some beer and cheer with your friends at this place! Here, instead of sitting in pubs, you will sit on an outdoor stool to enjoy bottles of beer that are also put on a stool. This is a great way for visitors to experience the traditional and simple lifestyle in Hanoi. Additionally, the beer is frequently served with mouth-watering food like roasted squid, fried fermented pork rolls, roasted bird, or sunflower seeds.

Learn about Vietnamese history in O Quan Chuong Gate

O Quan Chuong Gate was built during the reign of King Le Hien Tong (1749). It is about 1.5 kilometers to the North of Hoan Kiem Lake. From here, visitors can walk around to see the hustle and bustle of the local people's daily life.

As the last standing gate in Hanoi, O Quang Chuong Gate basically retains all of its original design. This building bears the imprints of the characteristic Nguyen Dynasty architecture, including a two-storey gate made of stones and bricks hammered with wooden mallets. The second storey is a pavilion with a curving roof. Originally used as a vantage point for guards, this storey is currently where the national flag is flown on special occasions.
